Seminar information:

Peru is one of the most biologically and culturally diverse places on Earth, with an expanding population that threatens to alter the ecology and sheer beauty of its tremendous landscape forever. The From Andes to Amazon: Biodiversity, Conservation & Sustainability Seminar will explore the fascinating diversity of organisms and ecosystems from the Andes to the Amazon of southeastern Peru, while studying the conservation challenges confronting this region. Through surveys of the biodiversity itself, and meetings with indigenous people, land-use managers, conservationists, and other stakeholders, students will analyze sustainable alternatives for the conservation of this world biodiversity hotspot.
